Big Suit Dismissed.

Judge A. M. J. Cochran has issued an order in the Federal court at Richmond dismissing the suit of the Continental Realty Company vs. C. J. Little and W. L. Taylor for $499,000. The order was made several days ago but was not reported until Wednesday. The Continental Realty Co. is composed partly of Pennsylvania people and W. L. Taylor, of Baltimore, Md., and Welsh, W. Va., and C. J. Little, of Jackson, Ky., was incorporated under the laws of Delaware with chief offices at Wilmington. ** The plaintiff's, among whom were F. L. Whittaker, of Huntington, W. Va., and T. M. Stephenson, of Lockhaven, Pa., H. L. Bowers, Dr. W. F. Beyer and Lex N. Mitchell, of Punxsutawney, Pa., and some forty or fifty others, were not satisfied with the rulings of the arbitrators on the law questions involved in the case.

They broke up the arbitration and the matter went back into the Federal court at Richmond. Some time later, after hearing the argument, Judge Cochran sustained the defendants' demurrer to the original bill in equity.

The Continental Realty Company then obtained leave to file an amended bill. The defendants Little and Taylor demurred to the amendment. At the last spring term of court at Richmond the case was demurred out of court, and plaintiffs were given leave to amend if they could and they failed. Judge Cochran then issued an order dismissing the case. Lexington Herald, Aug. 26.

FOR YOUR HEALTH'S SAKE

GERM COLLECTORS.

Long dress skirts that brush up the streets and sidewalks are dangerous to health. A garment of this character will collect in a few minutes' walk about the choicest and most varied assortment of disease germs that ever gladdened the heart of an expert bacteriologist.

Women should insist on having their street costumes made so that the germ laden filth of the streets need not be carried into their homes to spread disease.
